

What a year this has been; nothing could have prepared us for this magnitude of what has hit the whole world. Luckily, we have a heavenly advocate who knows the beginning and the end, and He is on our side and we win. The battles will not stop, and some will leave us battered and sore, but we win the war. Disease, elections, political divide and even death cannot separate us from what God has planned and ordained for us and this world. We must just keep the course and do what He has put in our hearts to accomplish.

So, we, my brother Jim Hart and I, go forward and we will be making our first trip to Brazil in 2020. Covid has not gotten any better there, but I feel that it is a necessary thing at this time. We are not particularly brave and we are also not crazy stupid, maybe a little crazy. We will be super cautious and follow all safety protocols and try to make sure that God will be glorified in all our endeavors.

One of the new ministry opportunities will be to speak with the local police squadron, both their morning and evening shifts. Our partner Pastor Jose has been meeting with them for a couple of months. He is excited with how they are opening their hearts. This is particularly personal because my husband was a Lieutenant for the LAPD. So, I am aware of their unique life challenges that come with their profession. (Police)

Pray for their protection and that God continues the work in their lives and families.

We will also get to meet one of the ladies we were able to help with a new house, Dona Diraneide. God led us to her through one of our partners, Sorriso do Futuro, and now her house is almost finished. (Diraneide's new house) (New bathroom)

Diraneide has Lupas, which has affected most of her joints and organs and she cannot work. Lupas is very painful, progressive and debilitating; we are praying for complete restoration. She also does not receive any help from the government. We are seeing if there is anything we can do to assist her with government aid. Her daughter was living with her but moved because her husband got a job elsewhere. Her ex husband is supposed to pay her rent, but she has had to move several times because he fails to pay. Her family gave her a plot of land and she was trying to build it by herself. She had one wall up, but it was ready to fall.

Happy Thanksgiving

(Walls going up)

(children like these, families like these)

She wants everyone to know that she had no expectation of help from anywhere, especially in these difficult times. She knows that God brought everyone and everything together to provide this miracle. She is beyond thankful and sends love and blessings to everyone of you.

Praise announcement: As of today, since March, with our new food program we have passed the milestone of serving over 1,000 families.

*Feliz Dia de
Ação de Graças*

*God
Great*

I hope that even in these challenging times, that you have a wonderful Thanksgiving. Your prayers and continued support keep us going with boots on the ground. Delivering God directly to the people who desperately need Him. God keep and bless you and God bless all his people!
